THE 1969
MONTAGE

Alabama College
Montevallo, Alabama

Tradition is a sacred part of every student's life at Alabama College. In the freshman it is exemplified by those little green hats, ragged Fledglings, and occasional choruses of "I'm A Little Teapot." But A.C. tradition does not terminate with the end of freshman rotting. It continues to make its presence felt through every cheerful greeting, every smile exchanged, and every friendship made. The final climax comes with the march across Palmer stage to receive the result of years of hard work.

The heritage of Alabama College tradition is not ours to keep, but is only for us to use and pass on to others. In our years at Alabama College, we gain much knowledge and experience, but only if we gain in friendship will the chain of tradition be strengthened by the addition of another Alabama College student.

ACTIVITIES

Support and participation became the keynotes of the activities on A.C.'s campus this year. Whether it was Rat Court, Drives Week, theater production, College Night, or some other special feature, A.C. students combined talents and energy to produce something of which the entire school could be proud. Individually each event represented another step forward in the progress of the school year; collectively they represented the traditional enthusiasm, spirit, and dedication so commonly found at Alabama College.

DRIVES WEEK

Drives Week, 1968, was a week of money raising efforts by various groups on campus. Beginning with the annual Blood Drive, A.C. students joined in whole-heartedly to make this week a success. Everything from a scavenger hunt to a Halloween Party to a faculty auction brought proceeds to be donated to charity. The sale of upper classmen, boothes at the SUB and the powder-puff football game heightened the activities for the week.

Mounds of shaving cream, clouds of flour, and oozing puddles of molasses greeted A.C. freshmen on September 26, as Rat Court brought an end to Rat Week, 1968.

Lasting one week and two days, Rat Week was entirely too long as far as most bewildered freshmen were concerned. Constant shouts of "air raid," or perhaps, "Freshman keep off that grass," kept most of these newcomers busy amusing their upperclassmen friends.

There could be heard many voices mumbling, "Just wait til next year!" as the sticky, dishelved rat court participants found their way back to other dorms.

COLLEGE NIGHT
1969

College Night, 1969, reached its climax Saturday night, February 22, with the judges' decision favoring the Purple side. This year, as always, an unbelievable amount of work went into the productions of both the Purples and the Golds. For weeks students wrote scripts, sewed costumes, composed music, designed and built sets, rehearsed, and directed, all the time remaining full of spirit and enthusiasm for their side. Then, at last, the atmosphere of secrecy, suspense, and expectation gave way to elation for some and heart break for others. But through the screams, the laughter, the hugs, and the tears came that undeniable feeling of love for College Night as it remains the greatest tradition at Alabama College.

ORGANIZATIONS

At one time or another during his career at Alabama College, each person comes in contact with some of the campus organizations. The many segments of the Students Government Association, the local honor societies, and the various clubs of specific interest offer students a wide choice of groups with which they may identify. Many choose active involvement; but whether a student actually joins an organization or prefers to remain outside its membership, he can not completely isolate himself from its effects. Through the activities planned, the recognition bestowed, and the services rendered, each organization continues to play its traditional role in life at Alabama College.

Mike Hays, SGA President

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

The practice of Student government, was first established at Alabama College in 1916. Since that time, the Student Government Association has grown from merely a student written constitution to an organized group of young people, who desire to contribute something to their school's activities. Not only does the SGA sponsor concerts, dances, and publication of the handbook, but it also serves as the students' voice in the government here at A.C. This association consists of an Executive Council, headed by President Mike Hays; a Student Honor Court under the leadership of Chief Justice Mike Malone; and a Senate, composed of representatives from each class and commuters.

Randy McDonald, SGA Vice-President.

SENATE

Composed of representatives from each class as well as from the commuters, the student senate remains a vital part of the SGA. With Vice-President Randy McDonald as moderator, this group legislates changes in regulations that students and faculty deem necessary for the progress of the school. After a bill has been passed in the Senate, it must be approved by the administration, at which time the Senate becomes responsible for making the new regulation known to all Alabama College students.

MONTAGE

Bill Davis, Photographer

Joe Taylor, Business Manager

Many hours of planning pages, scheduling pictures, and drawing layouts go into the production of a yearbook, and the 1969 Montage was no exception. To depict the school year through pictures as well as words was the objective of the staff members. These students worked from September until May to create a true representation of the 1968-69 academic year. Hopefully, the 1969 Montage will serve as a record of memories for years to come.

ALABAMA COLLEGE CONCERT CHOIR

Alabama College's Concert Choir provides an opportunity for intersted and talented students to participate in programs and concerts both on and off campus. On December 17, 1968 this group performed some seasonal selections for A.C. students including classical as well as traditional Christmas Carols. Bruce Tolbert conducted the Concert Choir this year.

CHORALE

Under the direction of Mr. Ted Prichett, Chorale is a girls' chorus which provides an opportunity for participation in the college music program. Membership is open to all interested coeds who enjoy singing. This year Chorale presented their annual Christmas concert and made a singing tour of Birmingham schools and churches.

Founded by Jim Weese this group added greatly to Alabama College.

ALABAMA COLLEGE BAND

With membership open to all interested students, the A.C. Band provides an opportunity for all those who enjoy participating as well as listening to music. This year the band entertained students with their annual Christmas concert and also played for the Governer's Day convocation.

To serve the school as a social and service organization and to stimulate participation in campus activities are the goals of the Kappa Social Club. This year during Drives Week a new tradition was begun, the Ugliest Man On Campus Contest. During halftime ceremonies of the Kappa-Omega football game the first winner, Daryl Baggents, was announced. Not only did the Kappas win this game, but they were also ranked first scholastically among the girls social clubs and were intramural winners in all sports. Other Kappa activities included sponsoring a dance for the school, a Christmas party, and trips to Partlow School to visit Jackie Crowe, a boy sponsored by the Kappas.

Among their activities this year was the donation of a picture to the library. Social activities included a dance—the Omega Round-up for all students, a fashion show, the annual shoe shine, and a powder puff football game with the Kappas for Drives Week. XAT

Chi Alpha Tau was begun on campus to mix the ideas of brotherhood and individualism. It differs from the other fraternities because the members believe that the fraternity should contribute to the development of the members rather than the members working solely for the fraternity. Having the highest scholastic stipulations on campus has not kept XAT from participating in social activities. This year members worked to restore King Family Cenetery, sponsored a project for Drives Week and participated in their first rush in the fall.

Granted their charter in 1963, Deltas have worked hard to live up to their motto "In medias res." Delta Kappa provides its members with a sense of brotherhood and fellowship while taking part in various campus activities. SPORTS

Whether it was basketball, tennis, golf, baseball, or intramural sports programs, students have traditionally supported and participated in all phases of Alabama College athletics. Led by A.C.'s energetic cheerleaders, they have boosted school spirit through large attendance, active interest, and whole-hearted cheering. But the field of sports does more than strengthen bodies and develop physical skills. It is equally important as a builder of mental attitudes. Through keen competition, in which success and failure must be met equally, the field of athletics plays an important part by creating an atmosphere of spirit and sportsmanship that every A.C. student can share.

CLASSES

Lectures, assignments, tests, studying, and research all bring to mind the continuing routine of daily classes at Alabama College. From the moment a student enters as a somewhat "green" freshman until his final exam has been taken, he spends a large portion of his time attending classes. But classes represents more than merely the academic schedule a person follows. Each freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior has a significant role to perform, for without individual participation, there can be none of the unity and pride in one's class that has traditionally marked the students of Alabama College.

1968-69

BECOMES PART OF A.C. TRADITION

As the school year draws to an end, the events of the 1968-69 season become things of the past. Everything from the spectacular College Night productions to the routine of daily classes will remain in the memories of students for years to come. Words like enthusiasm, dedication, spirit, and relaxation can not begin to express the emotions that most students feel as they look back on this array of activities. Some have been rewarding and others frustrating, but all have combined to create an essential part of the tradition of Alabama College.
